

Abstract Author Instruction

Hiroshi KATO¹

¹ Hitotsubashi University

Abstract: [around 200 words] This is a template for the extended abstract for the ANGIS Taipei Meeting 2015. Please make your abstract following this format. The manuscript should be camera-ready paper using MS-Word to finalize the papers.

Keywords: Abstract, Camera-ready, MS-Word, Style files

1. Introduction

- This format is used for Asian Network for GIS-based Historical Studies (ANGIS). ANGIS is publishing for the annual meeting proceedings and the Journal of Asian Network for GIS-based Studies (JANGIS). JANGIS adopts a portrait A4 format and here is a template file for MS-Word. In this manuscript, we describe usage of the template file.
- The abstract should also include tables, figures, footnotes and references.
- The author can decide the length of the paper.
- Deadline is 30th June, 2015.

2. Page Layout

2.1 Margins, Columns, and Number of characters per line and lines per page

Use normal A4 template with 2 columns.

2.2 Font

Style: Normal

Font type: Times New Roman

Font size: 9 pt

2.3 Tables, Figures, and Footnotes

- Tables should be digital in EXCEL file and inserted within the main text. Figures (maps, photos, etc.) should be submitted in EMF or JPEG file and be inserted within the main text.
- Tables and Figures should be numbered consecutively in the following way:
 - Table 1. Xxx of Yyy in Zzz [to be inserted in the center above the Table]
 - Fig. 1. Xxx of Yyy in Zzz [to be inserted in the center below the Figure]
- Sources and Notes should follow below Tables or Figures.
- Footnotes, if any, should be numbered consecutively and be attached after the main text.

2.4 References

- Sources of references or quotations should be indicated in the text as follows: (Stein 1984: 185-88).
- Reference List in alphabetical order should be attached at the end of the text.

Example (Titles in Italics):

Stein, Biurton. 1984. Agrarian System of India, Oxford: Oxford

University Press.

Mizushima, Tsukasa. 2008. "Ecology and Society", International Journal of Economic History, 14(5), pp. 34-56.

Kasai, Fumio. 2012. "Indonesian Migrants in Kobe", in Mayama, S. and R. Shimada (ed.), Migration in Japan, Tokyo: Tokyo University Press, pp. 78-101.

- Do not include self-citations too much.

3. Check List

- The authors should provide sufficient references in their manuscript to insist the originality of their study.
- The paper should be revised when its abstract does not show its purpose or written in inadequate English.
- The paper should be revised when symbols and abbreviations are not popular, wordings are not adequate, or the explanations on its pictures and tables are not adequate.
- The paper should be revised when some special wordings, which are popular only in an individual or a local group or a small company, are used without any explanations.
- The paper should be revised when its pictures or tables are not semantically clear, or they have some mistakes.
- The paper should be revised when its pictures or tables are not visually clear.
- The paper should be revised when the size or the scale of its pictures or tables are not adequate.

4. Miscellaneous

- The abstract will be shared with other colleagues and be made in public on the website
-

5. Concluding Remarks

We hope use this guidelines as a template of the extended abstract. Please submit by 30th June 2015. Please send it to the following address: angistaiwan@gmail.com

References

Stein, Biurton. 1984. Agrarian System of India, Oxford: Oxford University Press.

Mizushima, Tsukasa. 2008. "Ecology and Society", International Journal of Economic History, 14(5), pp. 34-56.

Kasai, Fumio. 2012. "Indonesian Migrants in Kobe", in Mayama, S. and R. Shimada (ed.), Migration in Japan, Tokyo: Tokyo University Press, pp. 78-101.